

Volunteering

Volunteering is a great way to learn about careers, jobs and the community you live in. True, there's no pay, but there are important benefits like networking and acquiring mentors that can help you achieve your goals. You might even get a job out of the deal. It does happen, and more often than you might think.

Try volunteering in an area that targets your job, career and major choice. For example, if law enforcement is your calling consider contacting the local sheriff or police department.
