RN to BSN — Stat

There's a shorter path to a RN to BSN.

Students pursuing an Associate Degree in Nursing (ADN) typically have to wait until they finish it and secure their Registered Nurse License (RN) before beginning Bachelor of Science (BSN) courses. But not anymore.

With the help of our Concurrent Enrollment Program (CEP), students working on their ADN can also complete four upper division nursing courses while completing their ADN.

Join me for a brief live webinar to explore your options.

Here's what we'll cover -

- Overview of BSN and CEP program
- University Resources & Benefits
- Block Transfer Pathway
- Tuition
